

Women Suffer

much needless pain when they delay using Cardui for their female troubles. Cardui has been found to relieve headache, backache, pain in the side and dizziness, arising from deranged organs. It does more than relieve,—if used persistently,—many have written to say that it cured them.

TAKE CARDUI

It Will Help You

Mrs. Maxwell Johnson, Tampa, Fla., writes: "Cardui cured me after doctors and everything else had failed. I had been suffering with numb spells ever since I was 16 years old. One day I decided to take Cardui. I have now taken 5 bottles and I can say that it has cured me. I advise all suffering women to give Cardui a long and fair trial."

Mrs. Johnson suffered years. Have you? Do you wish to? But why suffer at all? Take Cardui. Give it a fair trial.

PLAYED A SHELL GAME.

Parliamentary Joke by a New South Wales Solon.

Australia once had a great public joke, which was played openly in the New South Wales state parliament by a member who afterward became attorney general.

A bill had been introduced to protect native flowers from ruthless destruction. The honorable member arose and sympathized. He informed the introducer of the bill—a somewhat pompous gentleman—that he heartily approved. But why these invidious distinctions? The bill protected—and he quoted all the botanical names in the bill.

But why were other flowers equally deserving neglected? Why were—and here he recited off a long list of the Latin names for cockles, mussels, oysters, etc.—why were these sweet flowers to be blighted in their bloom by being plucked by any prowling excursionist who wanted something in his buttonhole?

The introducer of the bill promptly offered to extend the list to include these. So half the shellfish on the coast, including the periwinkle, were added to the flowers worthy of protection.

The officials of the house discovered the hoax next day and set it right. But the joke was too good to be kept quiet, and all Australia chuckled at the expense of the pompous legislator. —London Answers.

DON'T MIND BIG NOISES.

But Slight, Rustling Sounds Make Giraffes Tremble With Fear.

Among the curious characteristics of the giraffe is its strange indifference to loud noises as contrasted with its peculiar "scarciness" with reference to slight sounds. Noisy sounds, like that of a man walking near in hobnailed boots, the giraffe does not appear to notice, but should it be approached by a woman whose skirts give out but the slightest rustle the sound thereof causes the giraffe to start up with pricked ears and eyes distended in fear.

Officials of a zoological institution, situated near a canal, tell of a curious instance of this peculiarity of giraffes. After a terrible explosion of gunpowder on a barge on the canal the keepers were astonished to observe that the giraffes took little notice of the tremendous blast. They jumped to their feet, but almost at once lay down again when they found that nothing extraordinary had happened in their inclosure. But were a keeper at night to creep along outside that inclosure in his stocking feet the queer beasts would exhibit such terror that one would imagine them about to dash themselves in terror against the fences.

Giraffes fear the lurking foe, and a big bang scares them hardly at all. To them the faint, rustling sound is a token of the greatest danger. In that respect they are like deer. —New York Press.

Many Things Different in Holland.

Holland is to me one of the most interesting countries in Europe, writes George R. Sims. Apart from the excitement of having to do a bit of Blouid, with the edge of a canal for your tight rope, at intervals of a few minutes all day long, the Dutch themselves furnish you never ending study. I love to see the little Dutch boy of six smoking his clay pipe or his cigar as he clings to his mamma's skirt. There is something at once novel and startling in finding Dutch cheese and a penny bun placed in front of every guest at the breakfast table. In a land where a public company is a Maatschappij and nearly every house of restoration announces that the thirsty traveler can there obtain "Tap-perij, Slitterij and Slemper," there is always something to amuse you.

Oath of the Turkish Doctor.

The oath which young doctors take in Turkey when they come before the medical examining board contains the following pledge: "That when I am called at the same time by two different patients, the one rich and the other poor, I will accept the call of the poor without taking into consideration the money offered and will do my best for his treatment, and that I will never decline to answer any call, day or night, during the reign of common diseases or of an epidemic of contagious disease."

Keeping His Word.

"Henry, you owe me $5. You remember that bet you made me last week that you wouldn't smoke any more for a month. Well, I saw you walking down the street last night smoking a big cigar."

"I'm not smoking any more; I'm simply smoking the usual amount." —Exchange.

Out of Place.

Aunt Prisms—I am shocked at you, Maude. You permitted young Mr. Jones to kiss you. Maude—He only just touched me on the nose, auntie. Aunt Prisms—It was quite out of place, my dear. Maude—He knew it was, auntie. But you came in so suddenly, you see.

Fishing Luck.

"Have any luck on your fishing trip?"

"Yes. Counting those that got away and those we threw back, we almost got seven." —Detroit Free Press.

Her Criticism.

"I wish Fritz would write his figures plainer. I can't possibly tell from his letter whether it is 1,000 or 10,000 kisses that he sends me." —Fleegende Blatter.

THE HOUSE OF COMMONS.

In Pitt's Day the Speaker Kept Himself Stimulated With Porter.

The speaker of the English house of commons holds an enviable position today, but it was not until comparatively modern times that the speaker ceased to be a partisan, nor was his position always one of its present dignity. In the time of Pitt the speaker was accustomed to solace himself with a draft of porter.

Like sad Prometheus fastened to the rock, in vain he looks for pity to the clock. In vain the effects of strengthening porter tries.

And nods to Belamy for fresh supplies. Manners were somewhat looser in those days than they are now. Pitt himself on one occasion showed signs of a too copious libation to the gods, and this gave rise to the celebrated couplet:

I cannot see the speaker, Hal. Can you? What! Cannot see the speaker? I see two.

It is said that on one occasion Mr. Disraeli arrived at the house somewhat "under the influence" and was so indiscreet as to attack Mr. Gladstone, then prime minister, upon some point of foreign policy. Mr. Gladstone replied wittingly that "the right honorable gentleman evidently has sources of inspiration from which her majesty's ministers are debarred." —Argonaut.

AN HOUR OF THRILLS.

Shooting the Rapids of the Hodzu River, in Japan.

The rapids on the Hodzu river near Kyoto must fill even the most blasé of tourists with excitement. A train from Kyoto climbs slowly and painfully upward until finally it deposits its passengers at a quaint little siding.

From here, says the Wide World Magazine, one goes to the river bank and embarks in a rude, flat bottomed boat, which is pushed out by four men into the middle of a broad river, reed edged and sleepy.

For a few minutes one glides dreamily along; then, rounding a curve, one suddenly hears the roar of water, and the boat tears down a rapid, just missing the rocks on each side. The high banks race past, death appears imminent, and then, with one mad swirl, it is all over and the boat is on the quiet, unruffled stream once more.

This happens again and again for about an hour. At first one's whole mind is filled with the conviction that an accident must happen, but gradually comes a delicious feeling of safety as one notes the marvelous skill these men show in piloting the boat through the seething rapids and one is able to appreciate the beauty of the scene.

Lucien Bonaparte and Wellington.

Lucien, whom I had never seen before his arrival in England, as he was in disgrace with the emperor, was said to be at least as able as his brother and to have more decision of character. I have heard it said that it was he who saved Napoleon on the 18th Brumaire, and, in fact, I had heard him greatly praised. My actual meeting with him, as often happens, did not come up to my expectations. He seemed to me cringing in his manners and false in his look. He is like Napoleon in the outward shape of his features—not at all in expression. I saw him last year, at a concert at the Duchesse de Canizares's, beg her to introduce him to the Duke of Wellington, who was present. I saw him cross the room and come up bowing and scraping to be presented to the victor of Waterloo, whose reception was as cold as such baseness deserved. —From Memoirs of Duchesse de Dino.

An Ancient Rain Gauge.

The credit of inventing the rain gauge has always been given to Castelli, a contemporary of Galilei, who made one in 1639, but the director of the Korean meteorological observatory, Dr. Y. Wada, has shown that it is due to a Korean king. The latter, King Sejo, in the year 1442 caused an instrument of bronze to be constructed to measure the rain, and it is set out in the historical records of Korea that this was a vase fifteen inches deep and seven inches in diameter, placed upon a pillar. An example of this was placed in the observatory, and each time the rain fell the officials were instructed to measure the height and to make it known to the king. Other instruments were distributed to the provinces and cantons, and the results of the observations made were sent to court. —Knowledge.

Queer Anatomy.

Curious ideas about anatomy prevail in the press. It was stated the other day that a man was "shot in the ticket office." Another paper says a man was "shot in the suburbs." "He kissed her passionately upon her reappearance." "She whipped him upon her return." "He kissed her back." "Mr. Jones walked in upon her invitation." "She seated herself upon his entering." "We thought she sat down upon her being asked." "She fainted upon his departure."

A Regular Hamlet Player.

"Did you ever play in 'Hamlet'?" Inquired a theatrical manager of a recent acquisition to his company.

"Ever!" exclaimed the newcomer.

"Why, I've played in every hamlet of Great Britain!" —London Tit-Bits.

Like a Man

"Did Hawkins take his punishment like a man?" asked Lollyberry.

"You bet he did," laughed Dubleigh. "He bellowed and yelled and used strong language to beat creation." —Harper's Weekly.

Never mind where you work. Let your care be for the work itself. —Spurgeon.

MILD, GENTLE LAXATIVE FOR WOMEN GIVEN FREE

So many of the ills of women are due to habitual constipation, probably because of their false modesty on the subject, that their attention cannot be too strongly called to the importance of keeping the bowels open. It is always important to do that, regardless of the sex, but it is especially important in women.

From the time the girl begins to menstruate until mensturation ceases she has always vastly better prospects of coming through healthy if she watches her bowel movements. If you find yourself constipated, with bad breath, pimply complexion, headaches, belching gas and other symptoms of indigestion and constipation, take a small dose of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup

Pepsin. It is woman's favorite laxative. You will find that you can do away with salts, strong cathartics, etc., which are entirely unsuited to woman's requirements.

Mrs. Katherine Haberstroh of McKees Rocks, Pa., and Mrs. A. E. Herrick of Wheeler, Mich., who was almost paralyzed in her stomach and bowels, are now cured by the use of this remedy. A free sample bottle can be obtained by addressing Dr. Caldwell, and after you are convinced of its merits buy it of your druggist at fifty cents and one dollar a bottle.

For the free sample address Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 402 Caldwell building, Monticello, Ill.
